Time was

Time was memories, and memories are something shared by everyone.

Sorrow and hardships, memories to be forgotten.

Happiness and laughter, memories
never to be forgotten.

A street, school, person or day can serve as a memory's foundation. Every second lived in is a type of memory. Memories are possessions no one can ever take away. No matter how old one grows, one always has a memory.

Memories are a part of time, and living takes time.

Time is

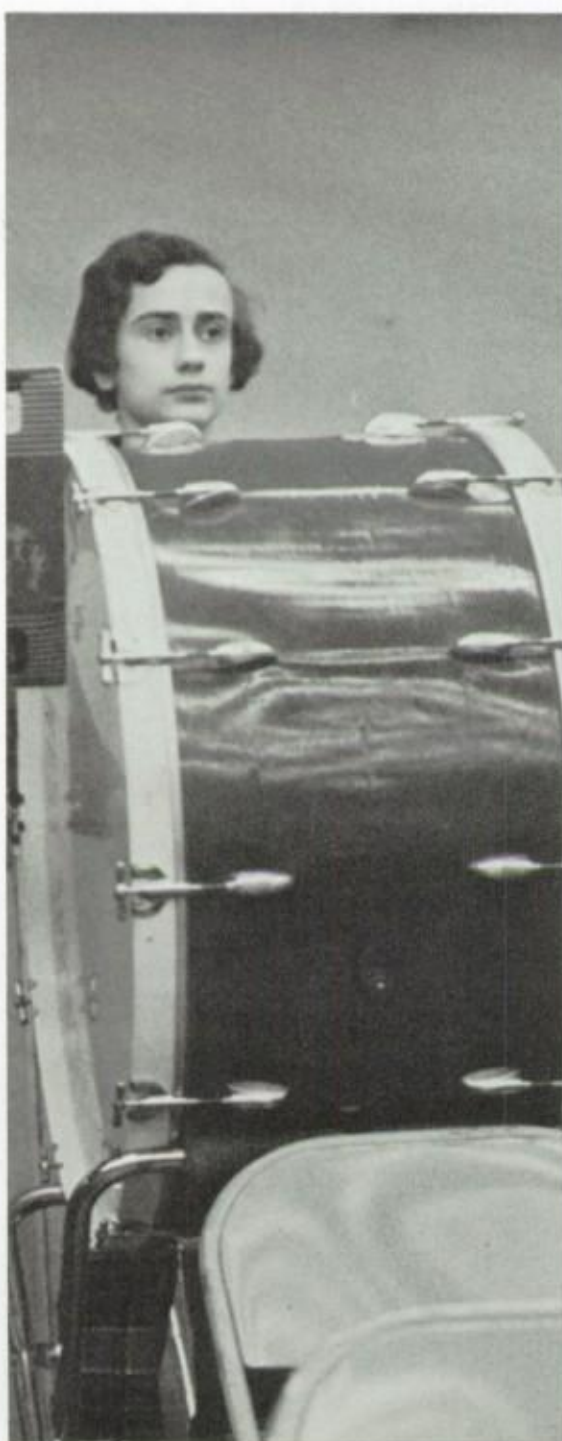

Time is a moment. Enjoy each moment, for each is unique. Once a moment passes another like it shall never exist. Life begins, dreams come true, and bubbles burst all in one small unit of time, a moment. A moment is raw material in an artist's hands. It is molded into whatever form the individual wishes; then, when finished, the moment dissolves leaving another to be shaped. Shape each moment, be happy, be yourself, enjoy and create, it only takes a moment.

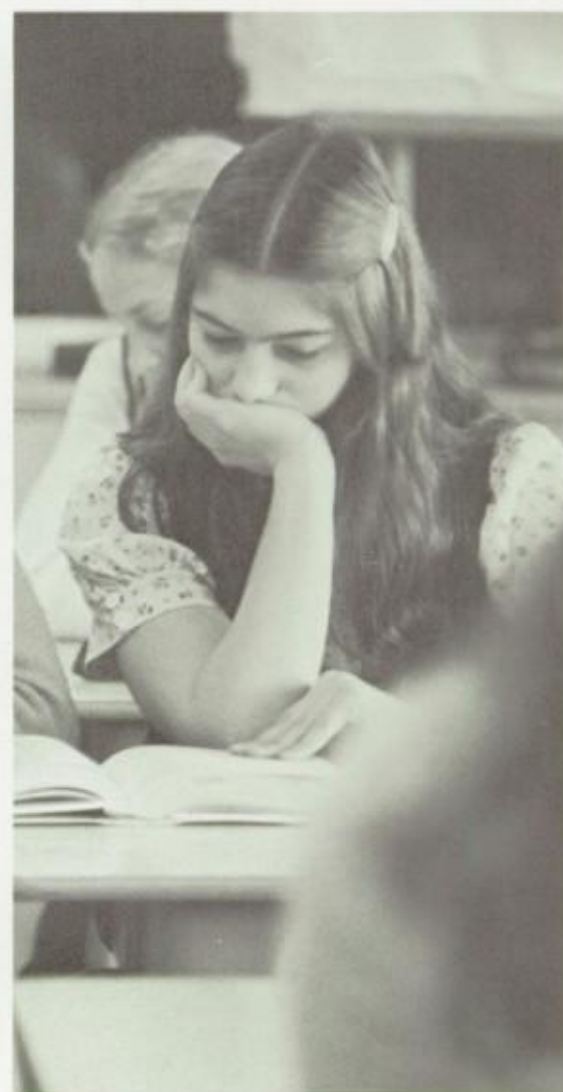

Time will be

Time will be an adventure, something to look forward to. For some, time will be too short; for others it will never end. Time will be exciting and dull. A lonely night away from home or a day in school, a sorrow felt by many or a hardship faced alone, will be a part of time. Time will be uncertain, something one can never predict for sure. Time will surprise some, maybe for the better, maybe not. There is only one known fact about time, and that is: time will be.

Time

Time, a word meaning a memory, a moment, or an adventure. Time is something which goes on forever. No matter how hard one tries, it can never be destroyed.

Although time is considered a loner, it has a companion called knowledge. Time and knowledge travel the world offering their experience to those willing to accept them. Accept them, for they have seen all. Most of all, be willing to learn from time for time was, is, and always will be yours.

Seniors stomp freshmen

Freshman Appreciation Day, held on the football field, gave seniors and freshmen a chance to show class spirit.

Frosh stamps, an innovation, identified the ninth graders.

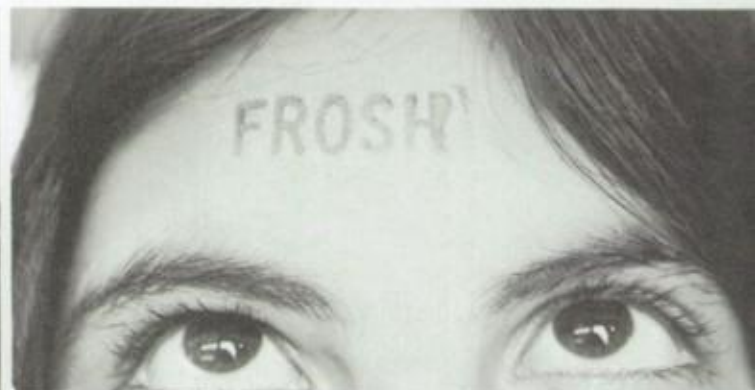

The insignia placed on their foreheads entitled them to participate in the October 4 event.

With juniors and sophomores as spectators, the rival classes competed in a pie eating contest, volley ball, three-legged races, and the traditional rope pull. Seniors dominated the contests, but the freshmen proved to be tough competition.

2

1. Straining against tough opposition, Eileen Casey and Mary Mattina lead the senior girls in the rope pull. 2. As his teammates anxiously look on, a senior competitor volleys the ball back to the freshmen.

Spirit soars at rally

Colorful figures and slogans decorated the lower gym walls as enthusiastic crowds packed the bleachers for the November 9 Agawam Pep Rally.

Seniors performed spoofs of the cheerleaders, the football team and coaches. With great anticipation, co-captains Mike Kemp and Jim Mason spoke of the next day's game. Despite a valiant effort, cheerleaders lost the rope pull.

For the first time, Gridiron Moms were invited to share in the rally.

1. Roused by the pep spirit, juniors shout their enthusiasm in the class competition. 2. Participating in the senior skits, Carol Walker imitates Mike Harper. 3. Cheerleaders Sue Smith and Julie Spanos struggle in a futile attempt to win the rope pull. 4. Addressing the crowd, co-captain Mike Kemp expresses confidence in the team and its coaching staff.

Crowds throng talent show

Students sang, danced, played musical instruments, and clowned in comedy skits before a record crowd in the annual Terrier Talents.

Claudia Czach received standing ovations for her guitar and vocal program with "Anticipation" and "If".

Other highlights were a detective spoof "Joe Panic", a jazz combo, and two dance routines by Lisa and Greta Breglio.

Mike Manchino and Judy Durocher directed the show, and Jim Okolita acted as Master of Ceremonies.

3

1. Jumping from drums to piano, Gary Kozlowski pounds the keys in a jazz number. 2. With vivacity and grace, Greta and Lisa Breglio "dance to the music". 3. Concentrating on the lyrics, Mike Manchino sings his version of "Time in a Bottle."

Prom held in lobby

For the first time,
the Mock Prom was held in the upper and lower lobbies.

Imaginative decorations helped set the mood.

The administration
praised the committee
for its originality
and hard work.

Siras Hale provided the music with a program that included
the theme song,
"We've Only Just Begun."

Forty-seven couples, consisting of sophomores and their escorts, attended the March 16 event,
over which Debbie Brouillette reigned as queen.

1. Just after receiving her crown, Debbie Brouillette dances with her escort, Kevin Poremby. 2. With the lower lobby as the setting, couples relax to the theme song. 3. Kathy Beaudry enjoys the rhythm.

Town observes bicentennial

Highlighted by a parade containing 160 units, 30 floats and 7000 marchers, West Springfield's bicentennial celebration was a year-long tribute to the town's history. In addition to local units, neighboring towns joined in the largest parade in town history.

Rosemary Wronski was chosen Miss West Springfield in a pageant held at the high school.

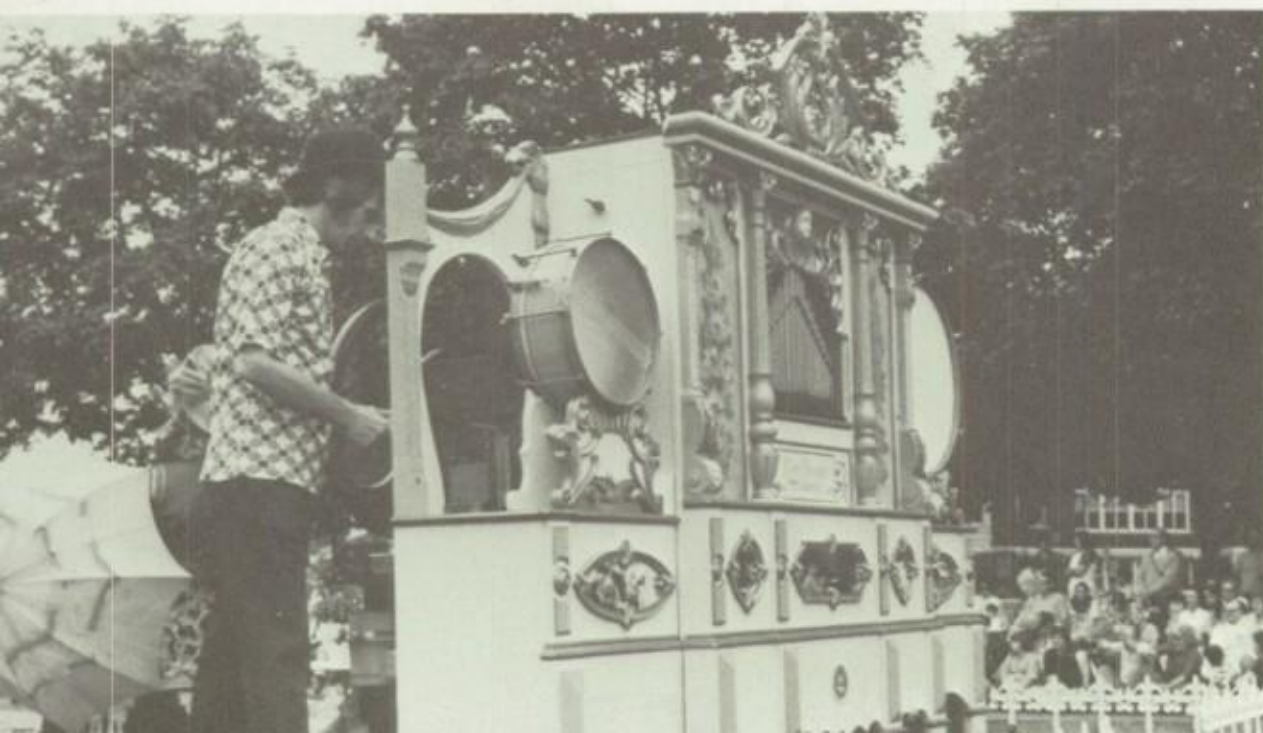

A re-enactment of the Incorporation Day Meeting, a July 4 chicken barbeque and an Open House were other events of the bicentennial year.

1. Holding her scepter and bouquet of roses, Rosemary Wronski accepts the crown to become Bicentennial Queen. 2. Agawam offers a little old-fashioned music on its float to help celebrate West Side's birthday. 3. In keeping with the historical theme of the parade, the Santa Maria sails down Park Avenue.

Chez Josef site of prom

Popular Chez Josef in Agawam was again chosen for the site of the Junior-Senior Prom held on May 24th. A social hour preceded the dinner served promptly at 7:30.

For a minimal fee, Grenier Ducharme Studios photographed the couples before the meal.

Members of the band, teachers, and administration formed the judging committee which chose the queen and her court shortly after the Grand March. Couples ended a pleasant evening by dancing to the theme song "Just You 'N Me" played by Blackstone Corner.

1. With a smile from runner-up Diane Di-Stefano, Margaret Chandler receives the queen's crown from Mr. Shields. 2. Surrounded by couples, conversation and food, John Leo prefers to remain happily aloof. 3. Making a small adjustment, Jean Patito fixes Nancy Roger's hair ribbon.

Kapinos chosen as standout

Vote by the faculty and his fellow students
named Frederick Kapinos
the senior who had done
the most for his class.

Steven McGrady received the Valedictorian Award, and Eric Smith, the Salutatorian.

The presentation of thirty-five other awards and eighty-one scholarships honored seniors in the ceremony.

Students, parents, and faculty enjoyed readings
of the Class Will and History,
a poem by Valerie Ruel,
and "Come Saturday Morning" sung by Mike Manchino.

Wyckoff Club hosts seniors

For the first time,
the annual Senior Banquet was held at the Wyckoff Country Club
in Holyoke.
Tickets sold for seven dollars,
and dress, as well as mood,
was semi-formal.

Capon was the main course
of the meal.
Students read the Class Will and Class History
to an interested audience.
Dancing took place afterwards
to the music of Forrest.

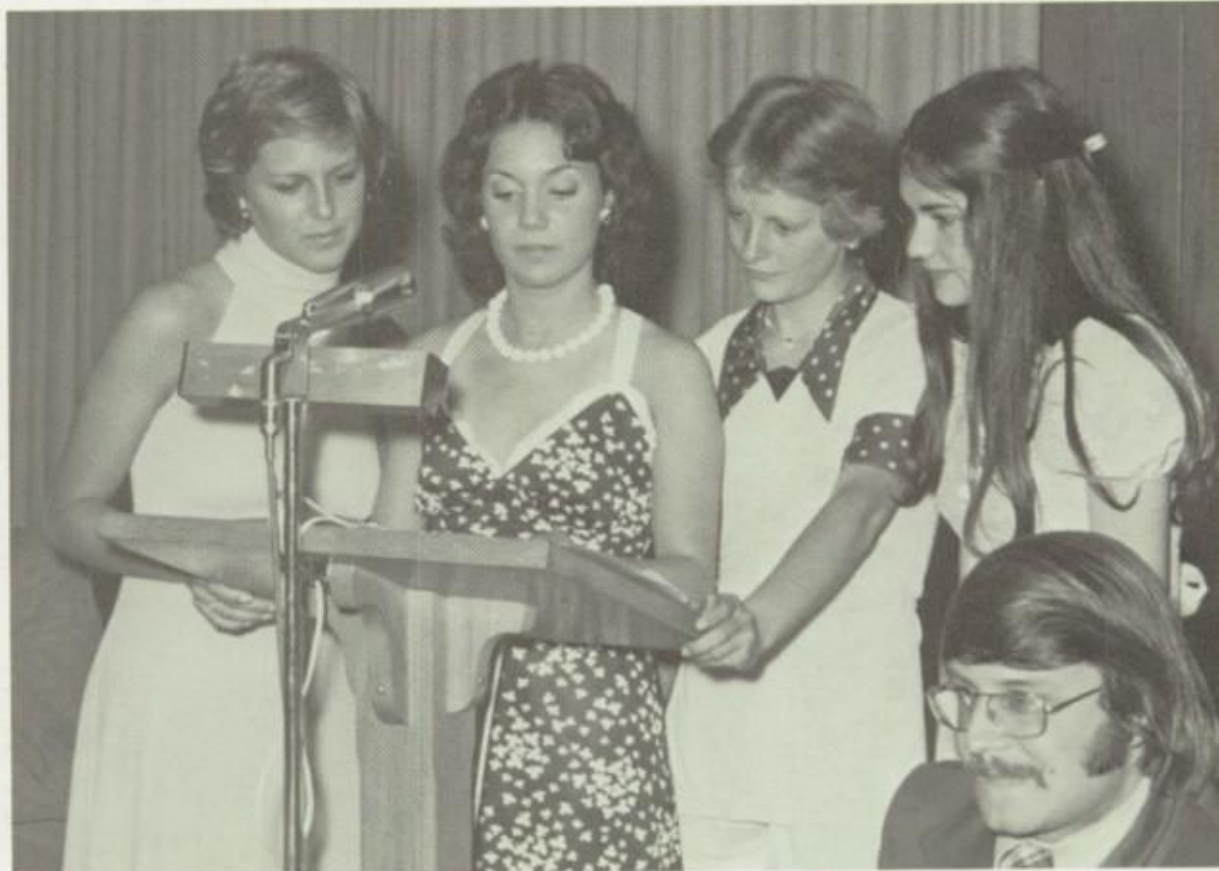

Mr. Grammaticas, Mr. Shields,
Mr. Bauman, and their wives also attended.

1. Listening to table chatter, Sally Janice and Lynn Phelps smile at a friend's joke. 2. Having kicked off her shoes, Judy Durocher proves that barefoot is more fun. 3. After careful preparation, Cheryl Meffen, Paula Valenti, Sue Smith, and Carol Langway read the Class History to an attentive audience.

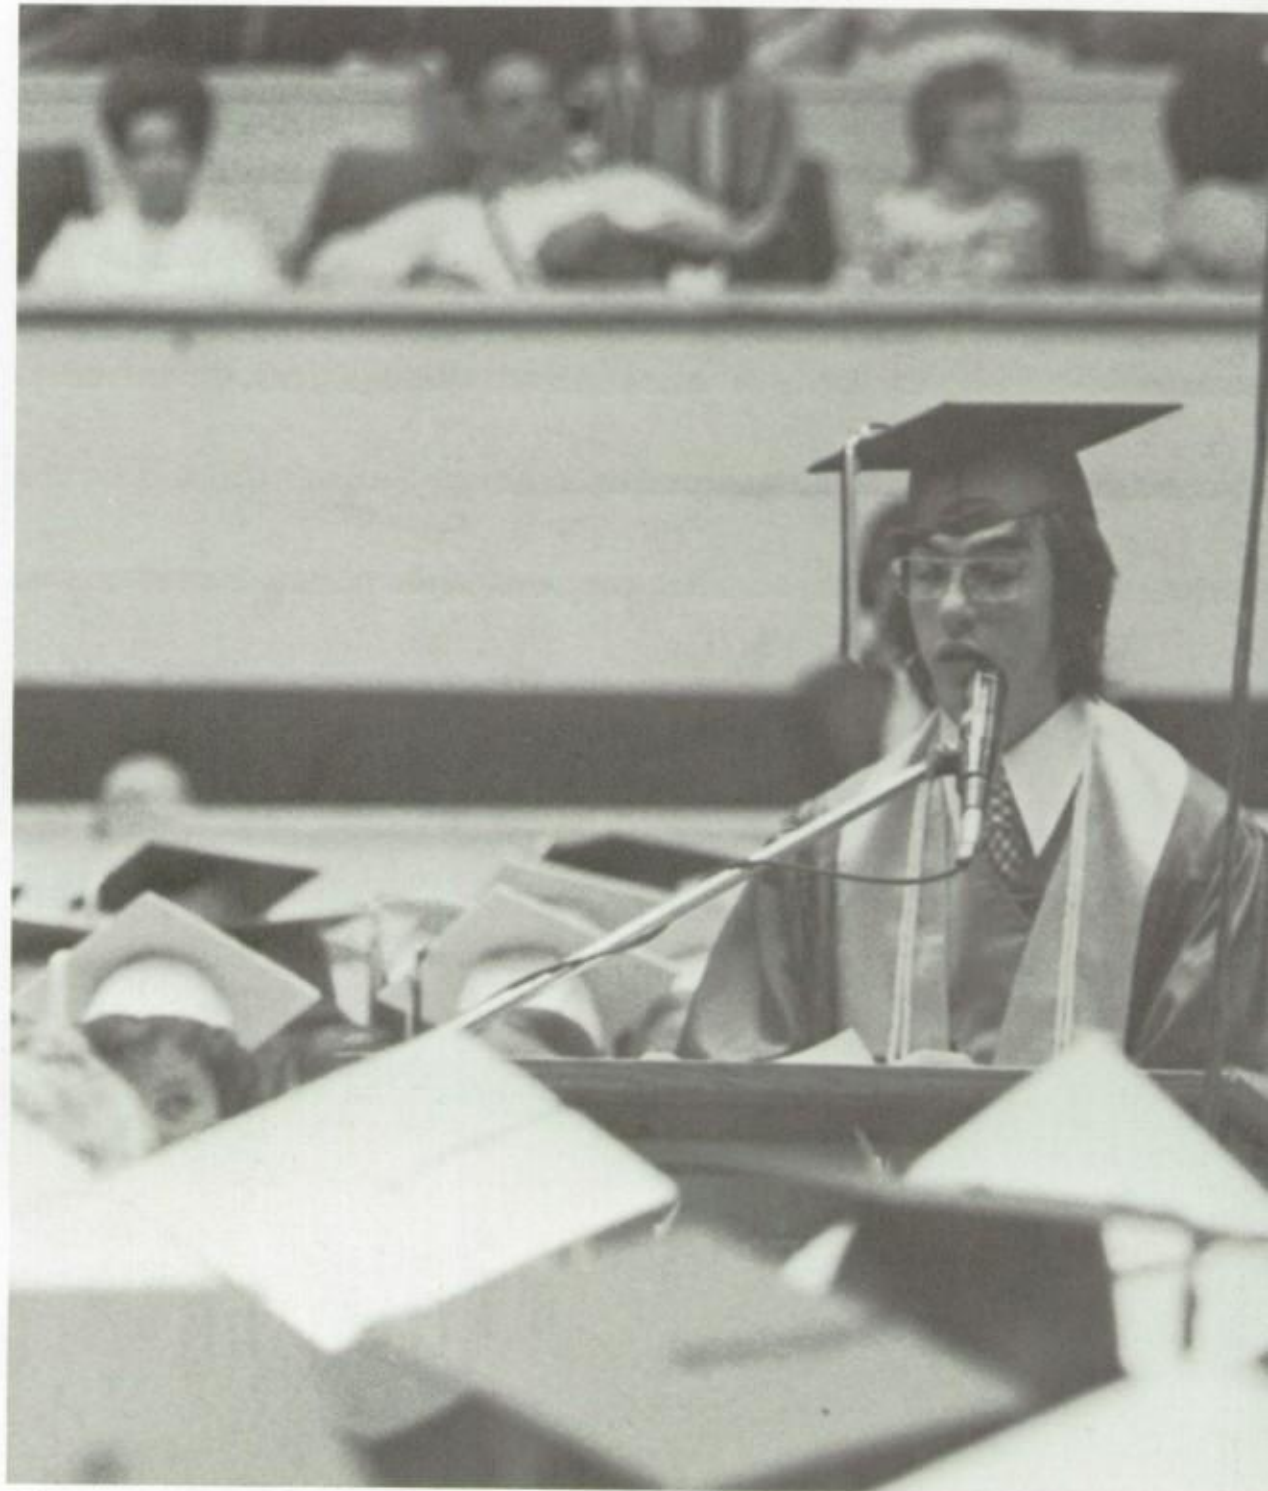

Coliseum sees 435 graduate

Despite talk of using the Town Common, commencement exercises took place on the traditional site. Together for the last time, the class of seventy-four filed through the Daisy Chain to receive their rewards for 4 years of hard work. Salutatorian Eric Smith spoke of his disappointment in the town's reaction to the METCO program, and Valedictorian Steve McGrady told the graduates to never give up in life. On the class' entry and exit, the band played the traditional "Pomp and Circumstance".

School Committee members review notes concerning digital computers. 5. As recording secretary for the Computer Study Committee, Mr. John Connelly makes a presentation to the School Committee.

Classes take field trips

Women in Literature, taught by Ms. Jean Wassell, added to the variety of English electives.

At Baypath Junior College, students went to a conference on refocusing women's lives, with author Elizabeth Janeway as guest speaker.

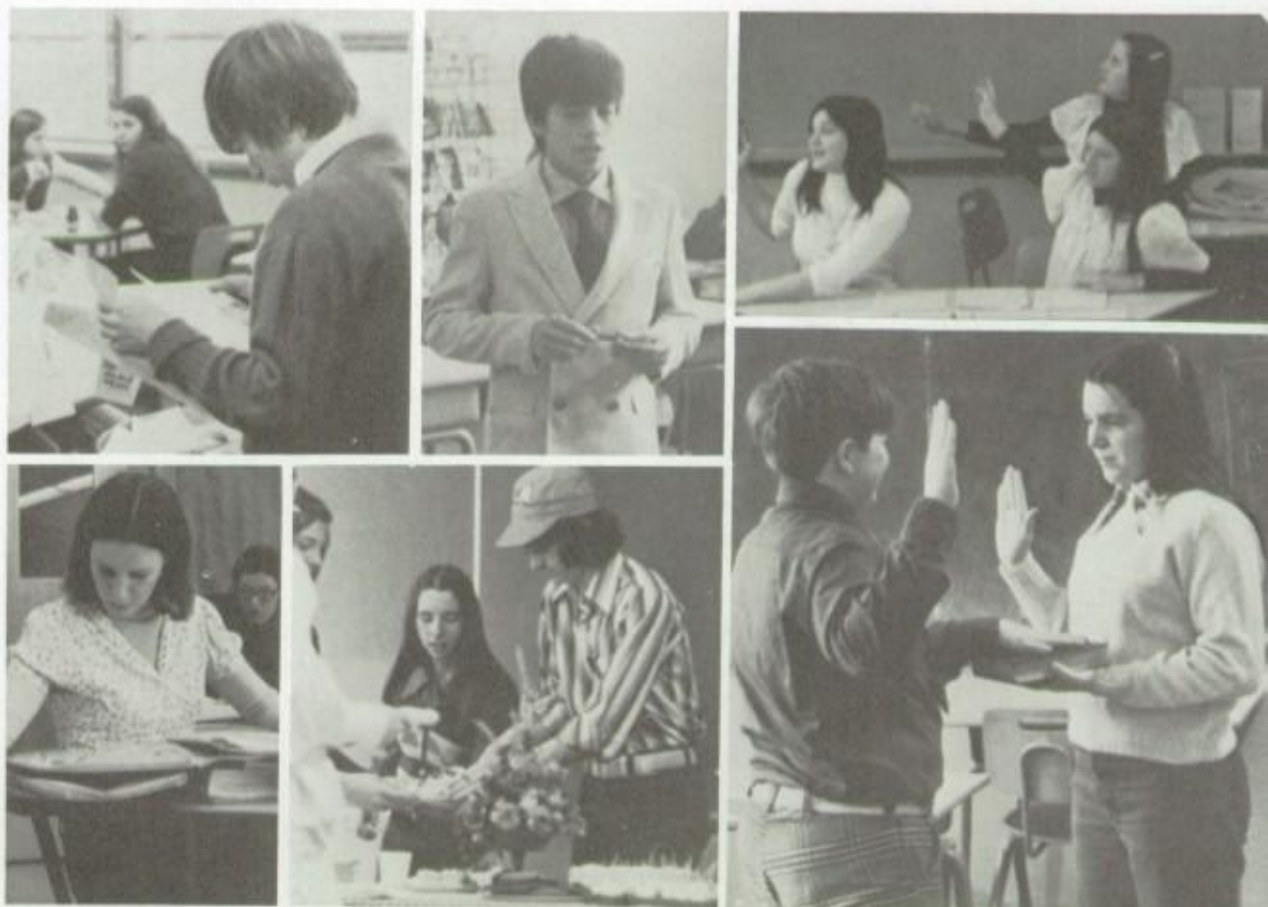

Special group rates allowed more than three hundred students to view The Great Gatsby at the Showcase Cinemas.

On other field trips, an American Literature class visited Mark Twain's house, and many English classes attended plays at Stage West.

History, Peter Smith explains a homework question to Kathy Calvanese.

Computer aids department

During a summer workshop directed by Mr. Manning Case, science teachers developed a new ninth grade curriculum.

Another group of teachers devised preliminary plans for a biology curriculum revision.

Mr. James Choate devoted extensive time and energy to the organization of a new computer system.

The advantages of this system included expansion in biology, chemistry, and physics. It also offered computer training for high school teachers in other academic fields.

1. Assisted by Mr. Beals, chemistry students learn molarity and percentage formulas. 2. Therese Dwyer pauses as she double checks a lab result. 3. A discussion about kinetic energy is led by Mr. James Choate. 4. Biology students take notes at a DNA lecture.

Math courses prove popular

Computer Math and Applied Mathematics proved to be popular electives for upperclassmen. Applied Math students traveled to New York City for a day to observe the New York Stock Exchange.

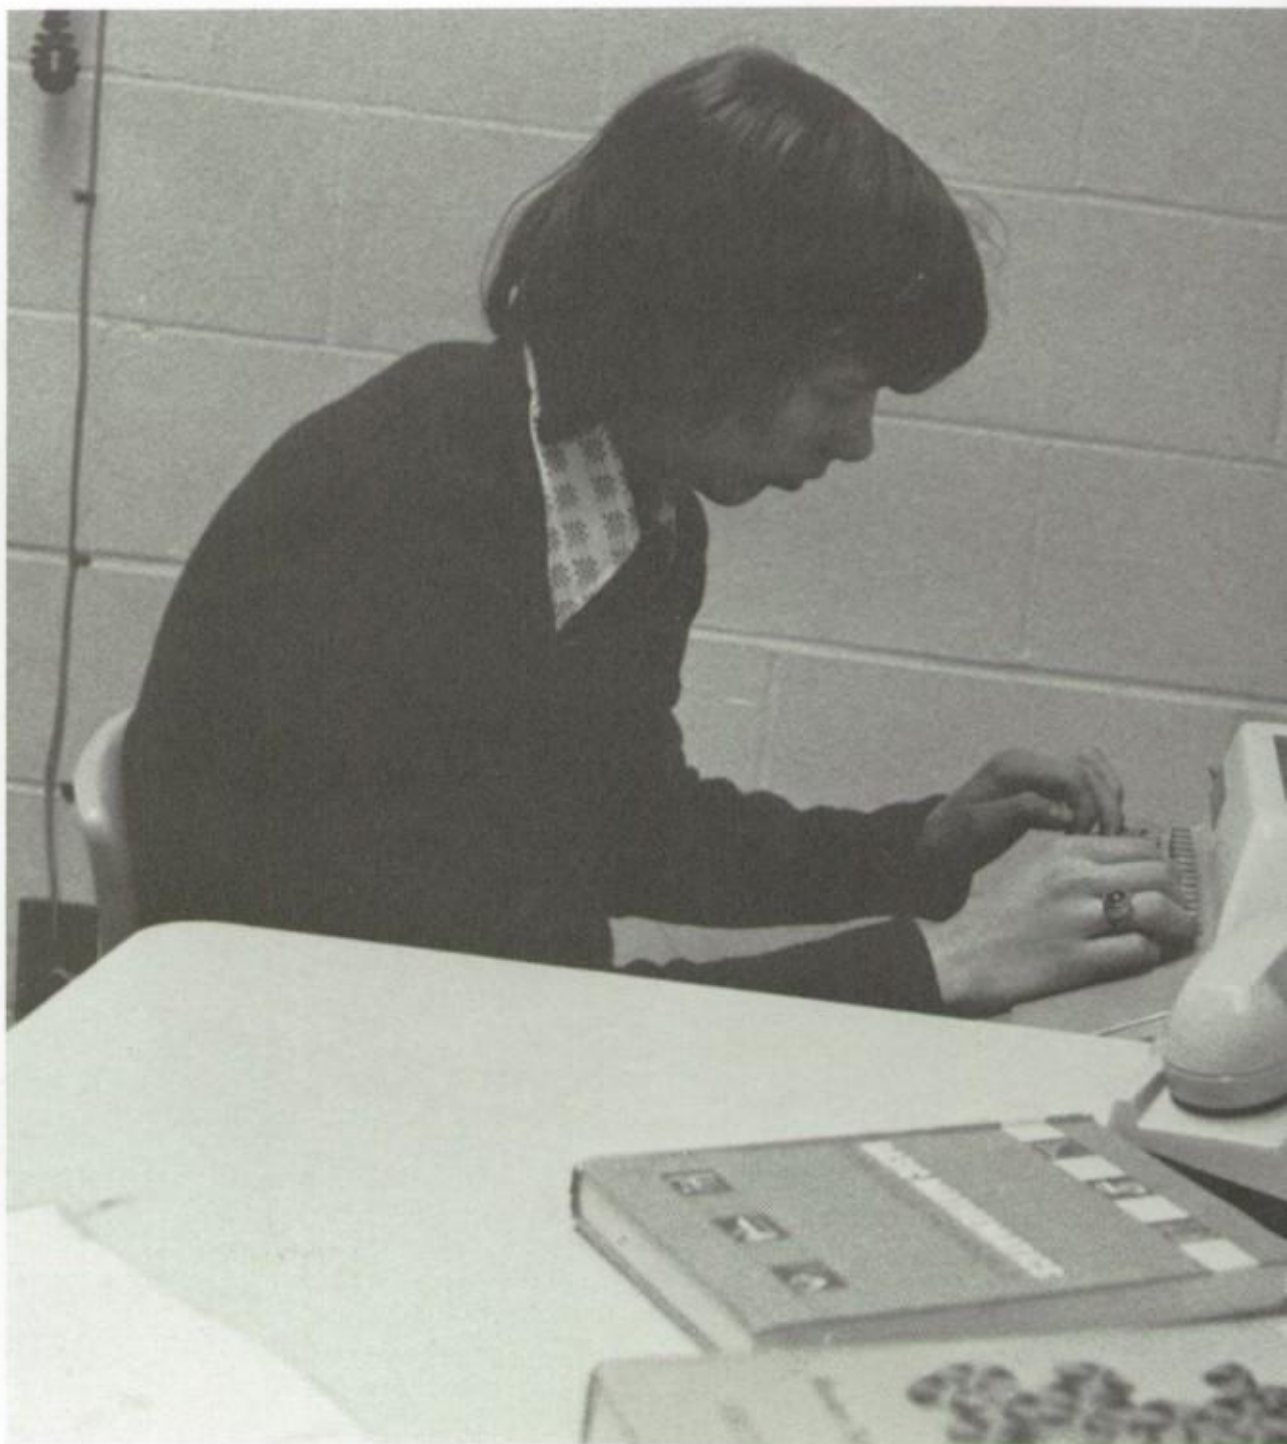

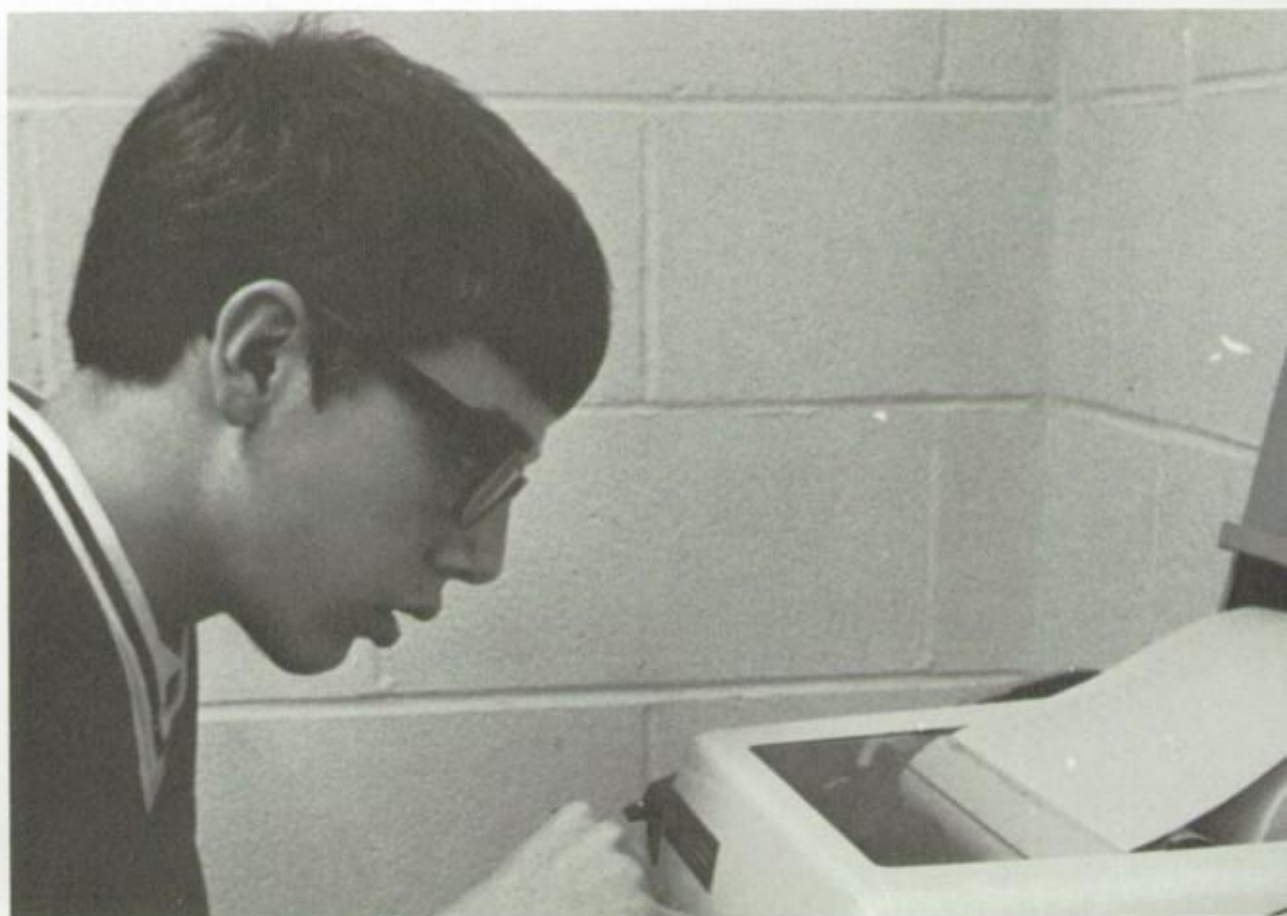

In the spring, trigonometry classes used their applications to survey the outside grounds.

Arranging the math curriculum for students from kindergarten through grade twelve, Mr. René Burque became the math coordinator for the school system.

Checking for mistakes, Ray Agustynowicz studies an outline before typing his computer program. 5. Hoping to learn how to do the algebra homework, Joe St. John pays close attention to Mr. Goss.

Students enjoy Spain

Ten days in Spain gave twelve students and two teachers an enjoyable April vacation. Accompanied by Miss Elvira Nasti and Miss Joyce Harper, the Spanish students stayed in Madrid.

There they saw the Royal Palace, the Prado Museum, a flea market, a Flamenco show, and a bullfight.

The travelers took side trips to Toledo and Segovia. The vacation offered the students an ideal situation to use the Spanish they learned.

Advanced Placement French V proved to be a popular program with nine students taking the course.

1

1. "Ha letto il racconto?" asks Mr. Angelo Laveglia of one of his Italian III students. 2. Dramatizing the students' version of a play in Latin II class, Michael Manchino hands Claudia Czach her golden piggy bank!

D.E. remains popular

A wide variety of courses, ranging from Typewriting and Stenography to Business Law, Accounting, Clerical Practice, and Record Keeping, gave business students a well rounded curriculum from which to choose. Distributive Education continued to be popular among students.

Under this program, seniors worked at least fifteen hours a week at local distributive businesses.

Electives such as Personal Type and Stenoscript allowed non-business students to gain practical experience.

1. In Personal Type class, Ann Stetson looks over the next lesson. 2. Supporting the student store, Cathy Aubrey asks Kim Holland about the price of the candy. 3. General Business students show their interest in a discussion led by Mr. Rioux about the history of labor unions. 4. Wanting the greatest accuracy possible, Dave Lodigiani adjusts the margins on his typewriter. 5. Attentively listening to Miss Curley, Cheryl Gilbert becomes acquainted with some new material in Stenography II.

Fine arts aid town

High school art classes collaborated with the bicentennial committee.

Members of one class decorated an entranceway in the bicentennial headquarters.

Other students assisted with drawings and printing in a bicentennial publication.

Decreasing interest caused the combination of advanced Music Theory classes.

The band met daily to rehearse a variety of concert and marching numbers for enjoyment and public performance.

Gym electives add variety

Carryover sports such as golf, volleyball, swimming, badminton, tennis, and archery were offered for juniors and seniors, to provide a basis for lifetime enjoyment and exercise.

Underclassmen continued with traditional activities such as track and field, basic swimming, and soccer.

Very popular with boys classes was the floor hockey program instituted in recent years.

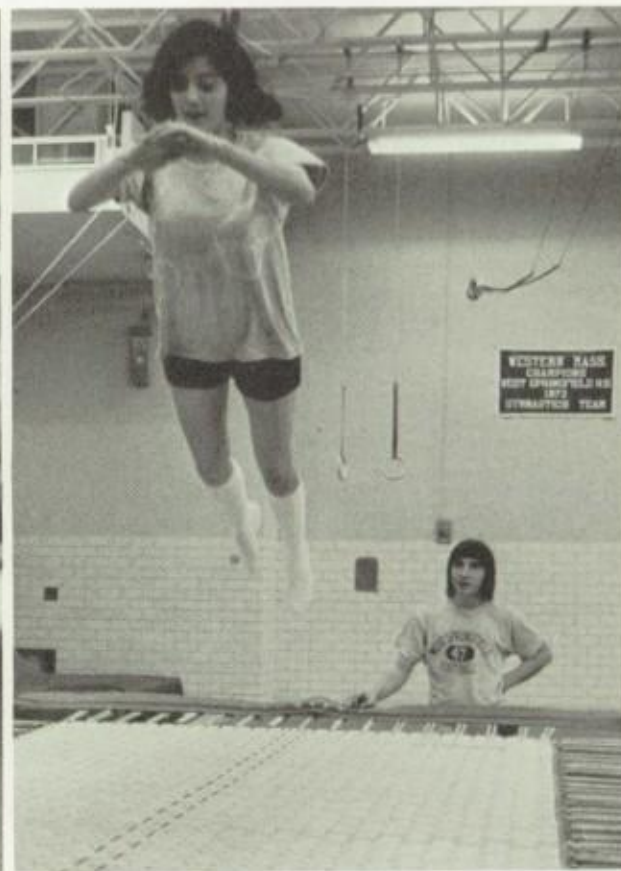

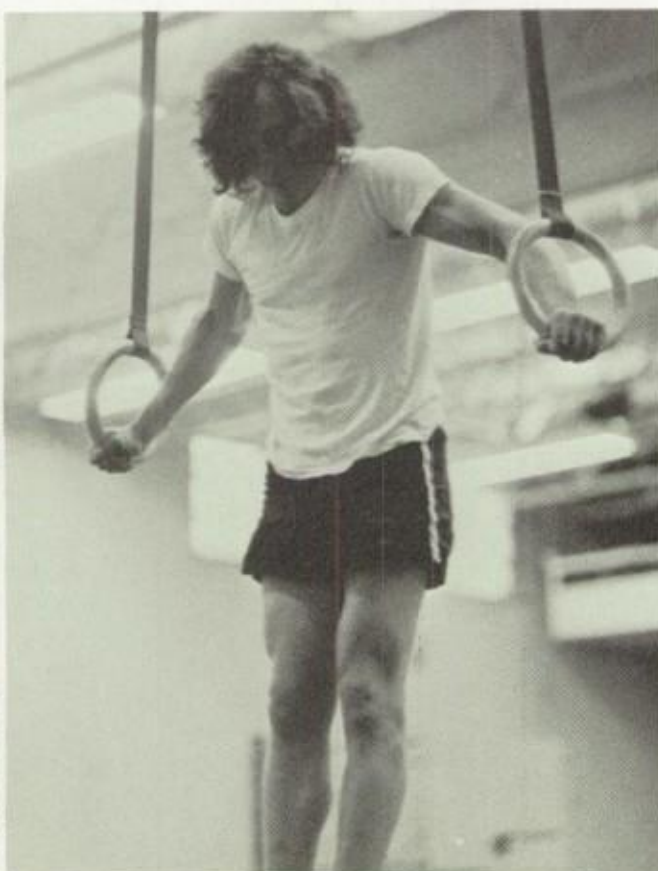

The Athletic Department purchased a set of foils, masks, and gloves to offer fencing as an elective course.

Assuming the en garde position, Patricia Chapman prepares to lunge at her opponent. 4. Members of a co-ed volleyball class engage in spirited play.

Shop classes become co-ed

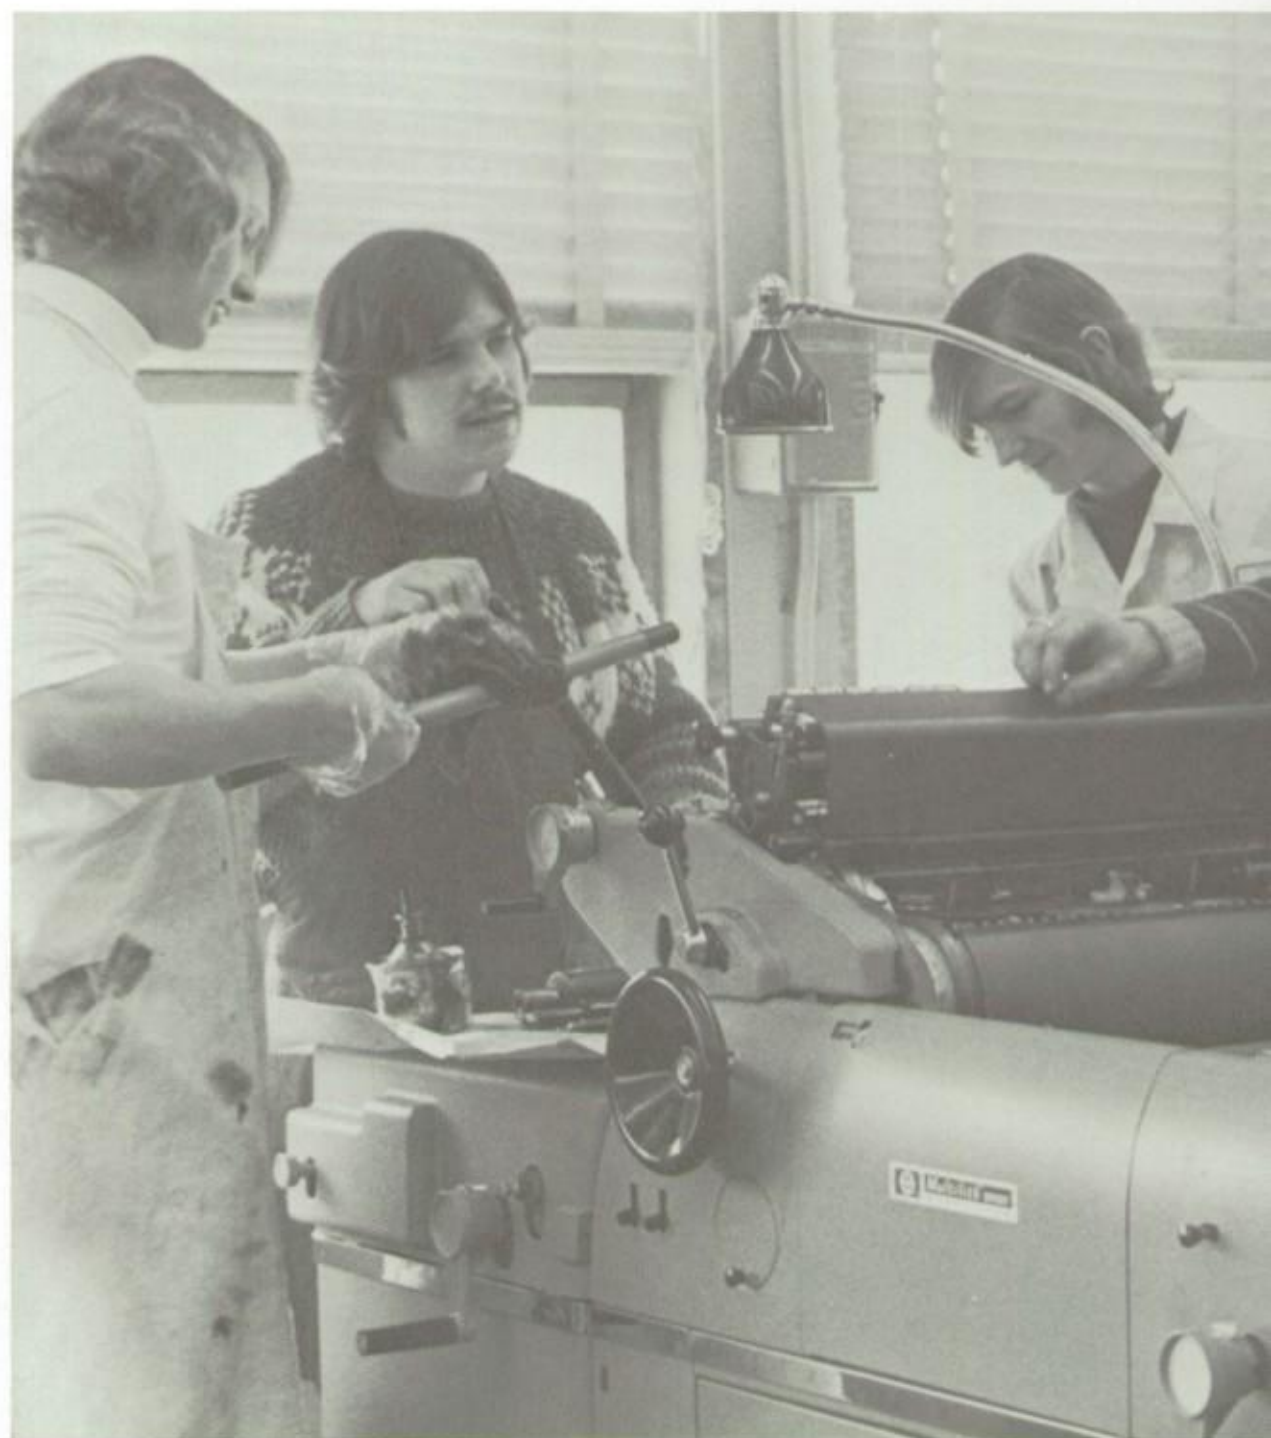

A larger enrollment of girls in such courses as Auto Mechanics and General Industrial Arts resulted in co-ed shop classes for the first time.

Newcomers to the shop curriculum included Graphic Arts Design, Engineering Drawing Seminar, and Leisure Time Woodworking.

Interest climbed in homemaking as more boys than ever elected sewing and cooking courses.

Enthusiasm was also shown for other home economics courses such as Child Development and Interior Decorating, both boasting a larger enrollment.

1. Tightening a bit on a chuck, Chris Tuohey prepares to operate the drill press. 2. During Auto Mechanics class, Paul Tetreault adjusts a brake line. 3. Under the guidance of Mr. Raymond Cooke, printing class members examine the new offset press. 4. A button is sewn on by Dawn Zitka, nearly completing her project. 5. Putting her sewing talents to work, Valerie Bottesini stitches a casing.

H.D. provides job placement

The Human Development Program provided all eligible students with a life preparation program, giving members job placement and a high school diploma after completion of four years. Academic classes, mainly composed of occupational orientations, comprised the students' first two years. The third year included work in sales, clerical, food service, and health fields. This was done in class and special school labs. The fourth year was spent working in closely supervised jobs in the community. The students received paychecks for these jobs.

Guidance aids seniors

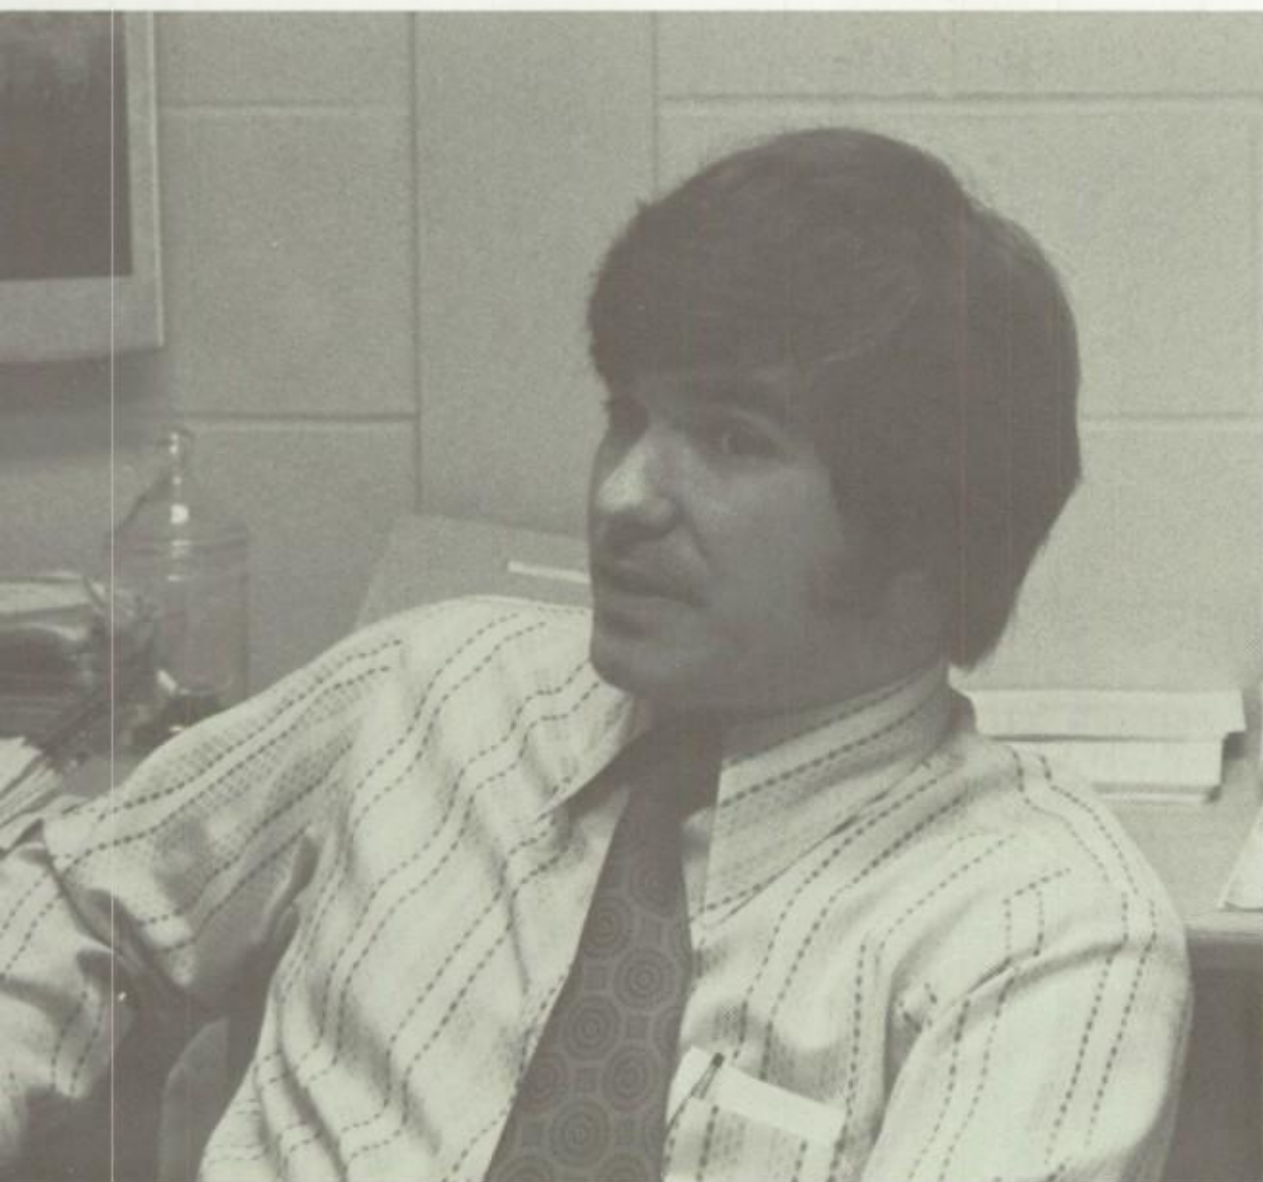

A guidance department highlight was placement assistance for the entire senior class.

Visits from college reps enabled seniors to make a wiser college choice.

Another feature of the program was vocational aptitude tests offered by the Armed Services.

Assistance for underclassmen included scheduling and discussion of personal problems.

The school library staff was led by Miss Victoria Swistro. She was aided by faculty members and student volunteers.

1. In her senior year, Diane Kotowski will work instead of attending regular classes. Mrs. Kozlowski, a substitute teacher, helps Diane with a job application. 2. During their free period, students find time to relax in the library. 3. With the school year ending, Mr. Peter Zarilla gives advice about college to a questioning senior. 4. A representative of the Valley Bank and Trust Company interviews Patty Shiel during the guidance program for job placement.

Offices run efficiently

The Health Office was responsible for the health of all students, faculty, staff, and administration members.

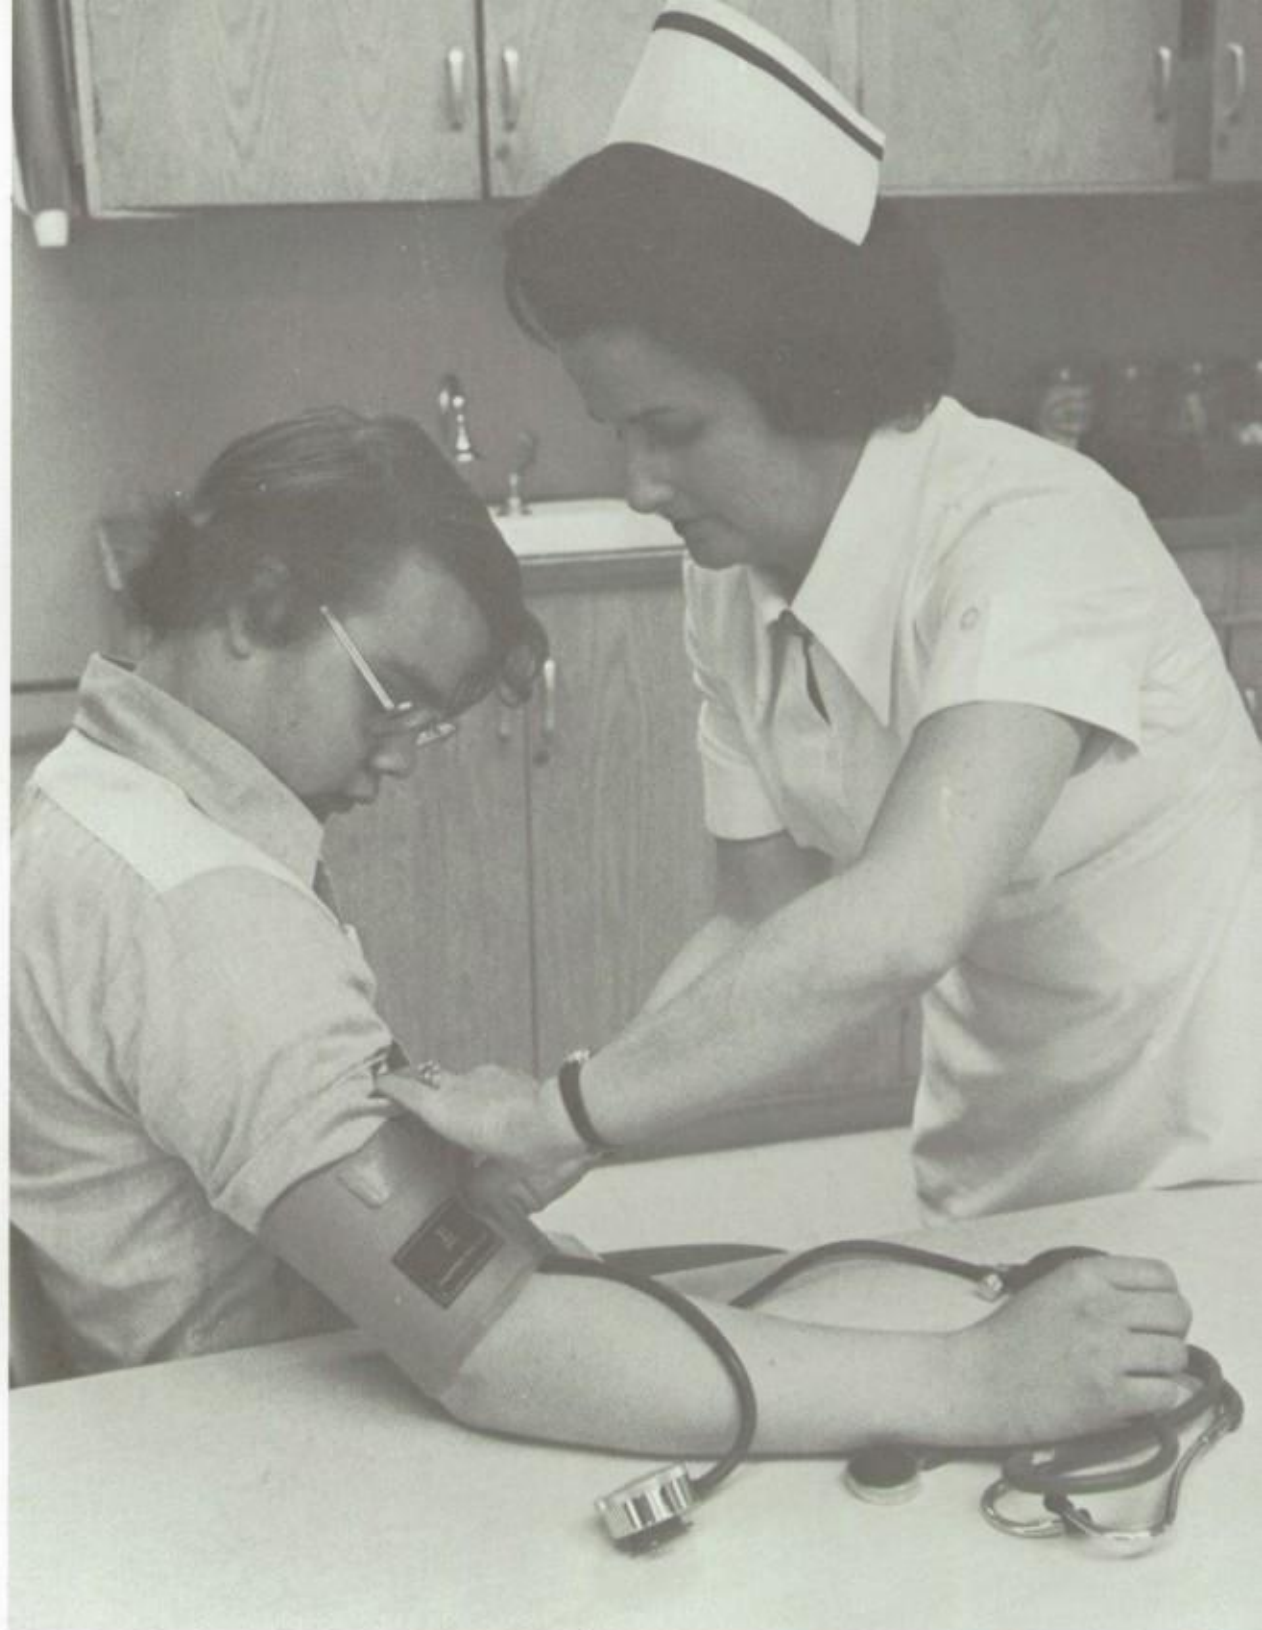

The Health Office also arranged physicals for athletic participants and students not receiving one from their family doctor. These totalled one thousand. Other responsibilities included control of day to day injuries, health counselling, and referral.

In the general office, duties included bookkeeping, attendance, supplies, and switchboard work. Mrs. Edna Christian presided as secretary to the principal.

1. As part of her daily duties, Mrs. Kennedy runs off copies of the general notices. 2. Good health becomes the most important objective of a nurse. Here, Mrs. LaVoice prepares to take Gerry Condon's blood pressure. 3. Operating the switchboard, Mrs. Johnson writes down a telephone message from a parent.

A la Carte adds variety

The A la Carte program featured a wider variety of school-made goods for the students to buy. Syrian and submarine sandwiches, 100% beef hamburgers, tarts, and turnovers received an enthusiastic response.

Because of the rising costs, lunch prices were forced up.

Sixteen janitors and two matrons had the responsibility of repairs and maintenance of the school and its grounds. Custodians also controlled the burglar alarm system on weekends.

1. Taking a break from work, Mrs. Sally Barlow opens a can of oranges for her lunch. 2. While students attend their classes, Mr. Smith finds time before lunch to sweep the corridor alongside the cafeteria. 3. Cafeteria ladies relax and enjoy the meal they've prepared, after having served the students and faculty. 4. During Lunch A, Ruth Blanchard places a dish of apple crisp on the dessert tray.

ACTIVITIES ACTIVITIES A

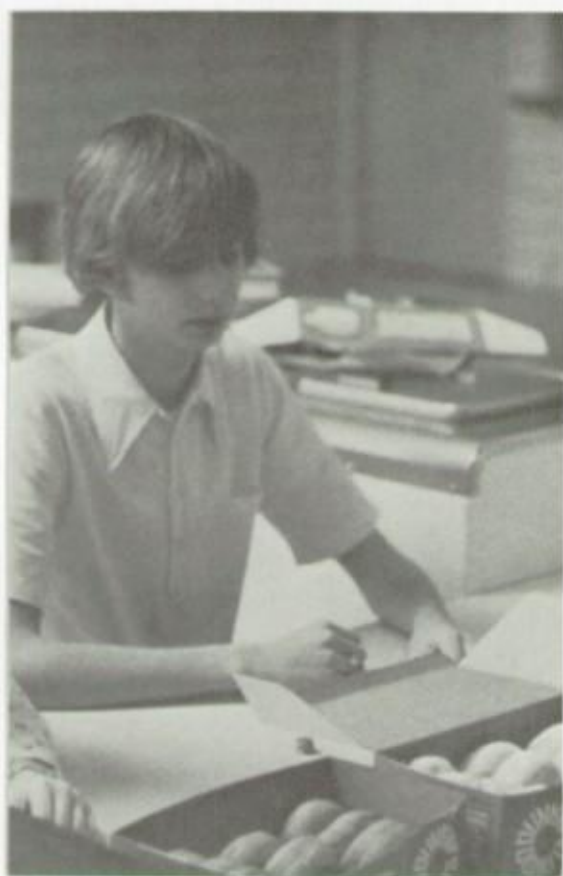

Senate hosts tag sale

Raising funds to bolster the Student Activity treasury took top priority in the Student Senate. On May 5, a Terrier Tag Sale raised money for the new Student Senate scholarship. The sale involved many clubs, the Senate acting as the nucleus.

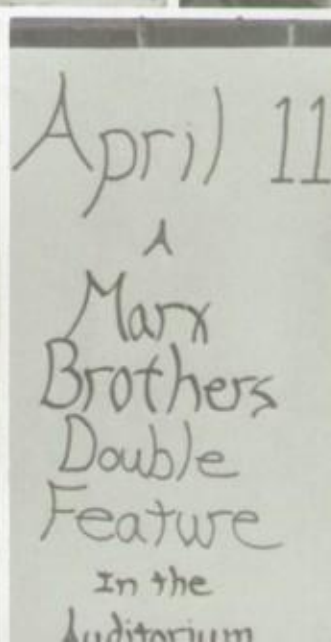

In the fall, the visiting of neighboring high schools let students compare other schools to West Side.

Donut sales twice a week, collecting class dues, and showing movies completed the year. Mr. Sylvester Walsh became new advisor to the Senate.

2

1. As Betsy Dionne and Rick Kapinos look on, Damon Marquis explains the difference between hamburgers served at lunch and those offered in a-la-carte. 2. Making sure there is sufficient change, Brian O'Connor prepares for a donut sale.

Club attends 3 congresses

Trips to model congresses in Springfield, Long Island, and New Rochelle, New York were highlights of the Model Government Club. Members learned rules of debate and the structure and functions of government at these meetings.

President Stephen McGrady led the 20-member organization in planning these trips. Mr. George Johnston was advisor.

Because of the fuel shortage, the annual model congress at West Springfield had to be cancelled but plans are being made for next year's congress.

3

1. At a congress held at AIC, members of the Model Government Club pose for the camera after receiving the day's schedule. 2. Ms. Jean Wassell and Wally Walters make plans for an upcoming congress at Long Island, New York. 3. Attentively listening to a guest speaker, delegates deliberate a proposal.

Store serves as DECA lab

Serving as a practical application of DECA techniques, the Student Store added a variety of new products.

Along with essential school supplies, new merchandise included socks, kleenex, candy, and cough drops.

Under the direction of Mr. Roger Rioux and Manager Karen Silk, the store was open from 7:30 to 2:30.

Taking inventory, designing displays, and other phases of retailing were the responsibilities of the 30-member organization.

1. Choosing a book, Lori Ann Geren briefly checks the contents. 2. After making his selection. Robert Twining fishes for some money.

Patrol active in assisting

Under a new advisor, Mr. Carl Ostrowski, the Student Patrol started the year by helping confused freshmen to class.

On October 13, Back-to-School Night, the patrol helped equally puzzled parents find their way.

Selling candy and soda at basketball games and the girls' W.M. gymnastics competition brought funds into the treasury.

Steve McGrady served as captain, Ann Bailey as lieutenant, and Nancy Couture as secretary.

1. Much confusion accompanies the first day of school. Here, Mary Millett directs Mary Ellen Holden to her next class. 2. While sitting at her patrol post, Cathy Henderson catches up with her assignments. 3. Fulfilling a Student Patrol duty, Wayne Corey checks Dagmar Potyka's pass.

H.R.reps collect senate dues

Homeroom representatives aided the Student Senate by collecting class dues of one dollar per student on October 11. Sophomores also distributed class ring kits that allowed students in their homerooms to determine their ring size and fill out order forms.

Homeroom bankers and alternates were responsible for collecting the savings of students every Tuesday during the homeroom period.

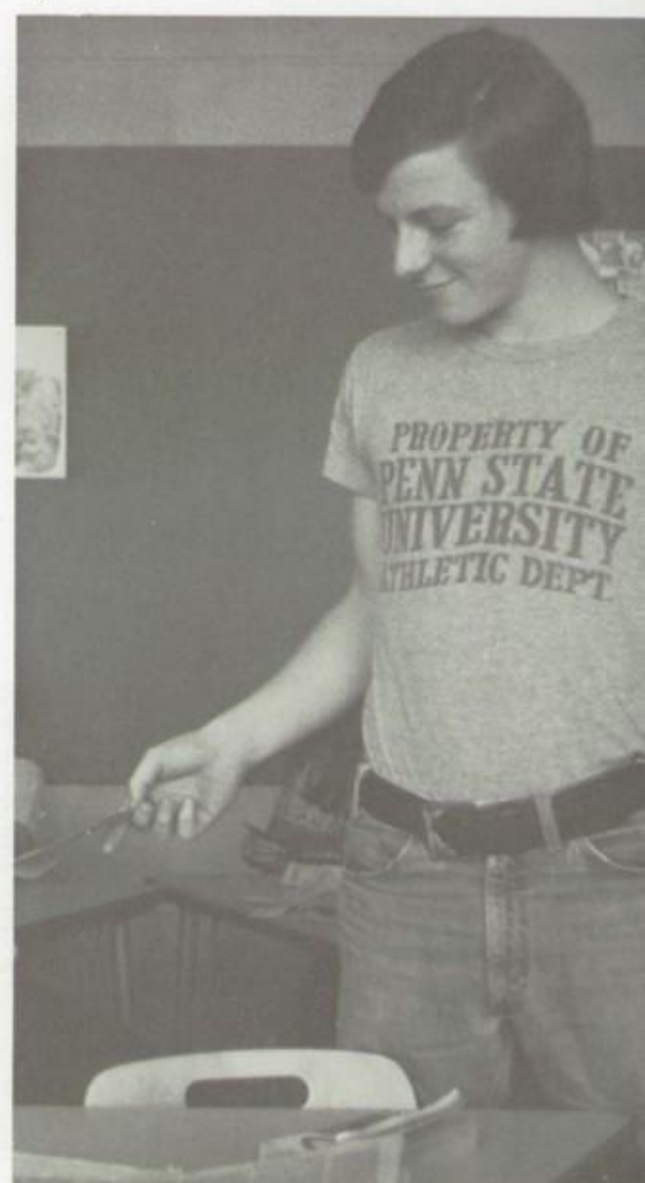

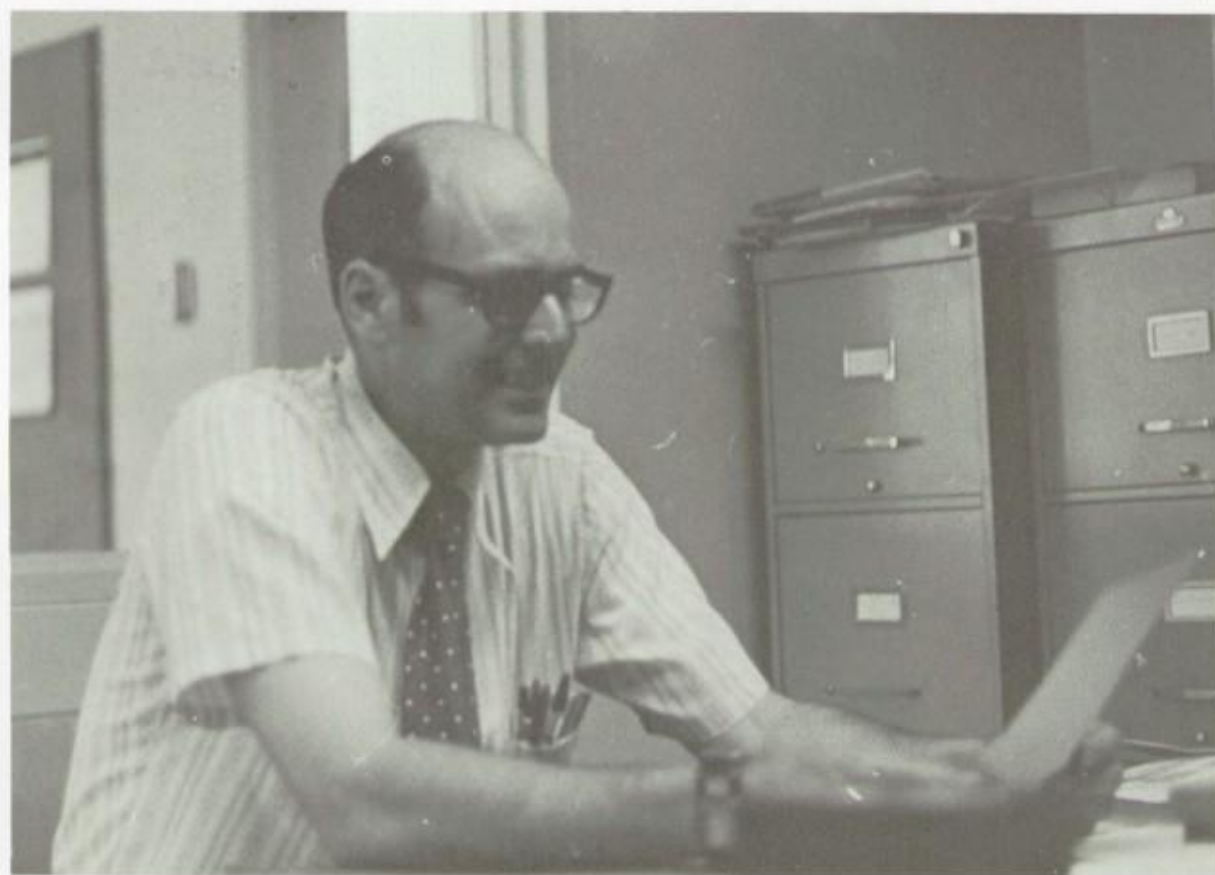

With Mr. Maurice Pease's guidance, the banking program ran smoothly throughout the year.

1. Handing Alan Nash his change, Betsy Dionne writes his name on the "dues paid" envelope.
2. Taking a little time out from his regular classes, Mr. Maurice Pease compares the week's total savings statistics with those of the previous one.
3. Doublechecking the amount, Kevin Ahearn hands his banking envelope to his homeroom banker.

NHS inducts 40 new members

Following the motto of service, character, leadership, and scholarship, the National Honor Society selected 40 new students for membership.

Those achieving high scholastic averages as well as participating in extra-curricular activities were invited to join.

Privileges given to NHS members were the free use of study halls and receiving extra books when available.

Advisor Francis Crane and President Stephen McGrady guided the society.

1

1. Suggesting funding by tax dollars as a possible solution, Mr. John Mehegan speaks on corruption in political campaigning. 2. With a congratulatory handshake from Mr. Shields, Chris Dagradi receives her membership card.

Student aides serve school

Many students chose to contribute their daily study halls to helping improve the efficiency of the school by lightening the faculty's workload.

Library aides kept the card files in order, checked passes, arranged shelves, and took charge of book loans.

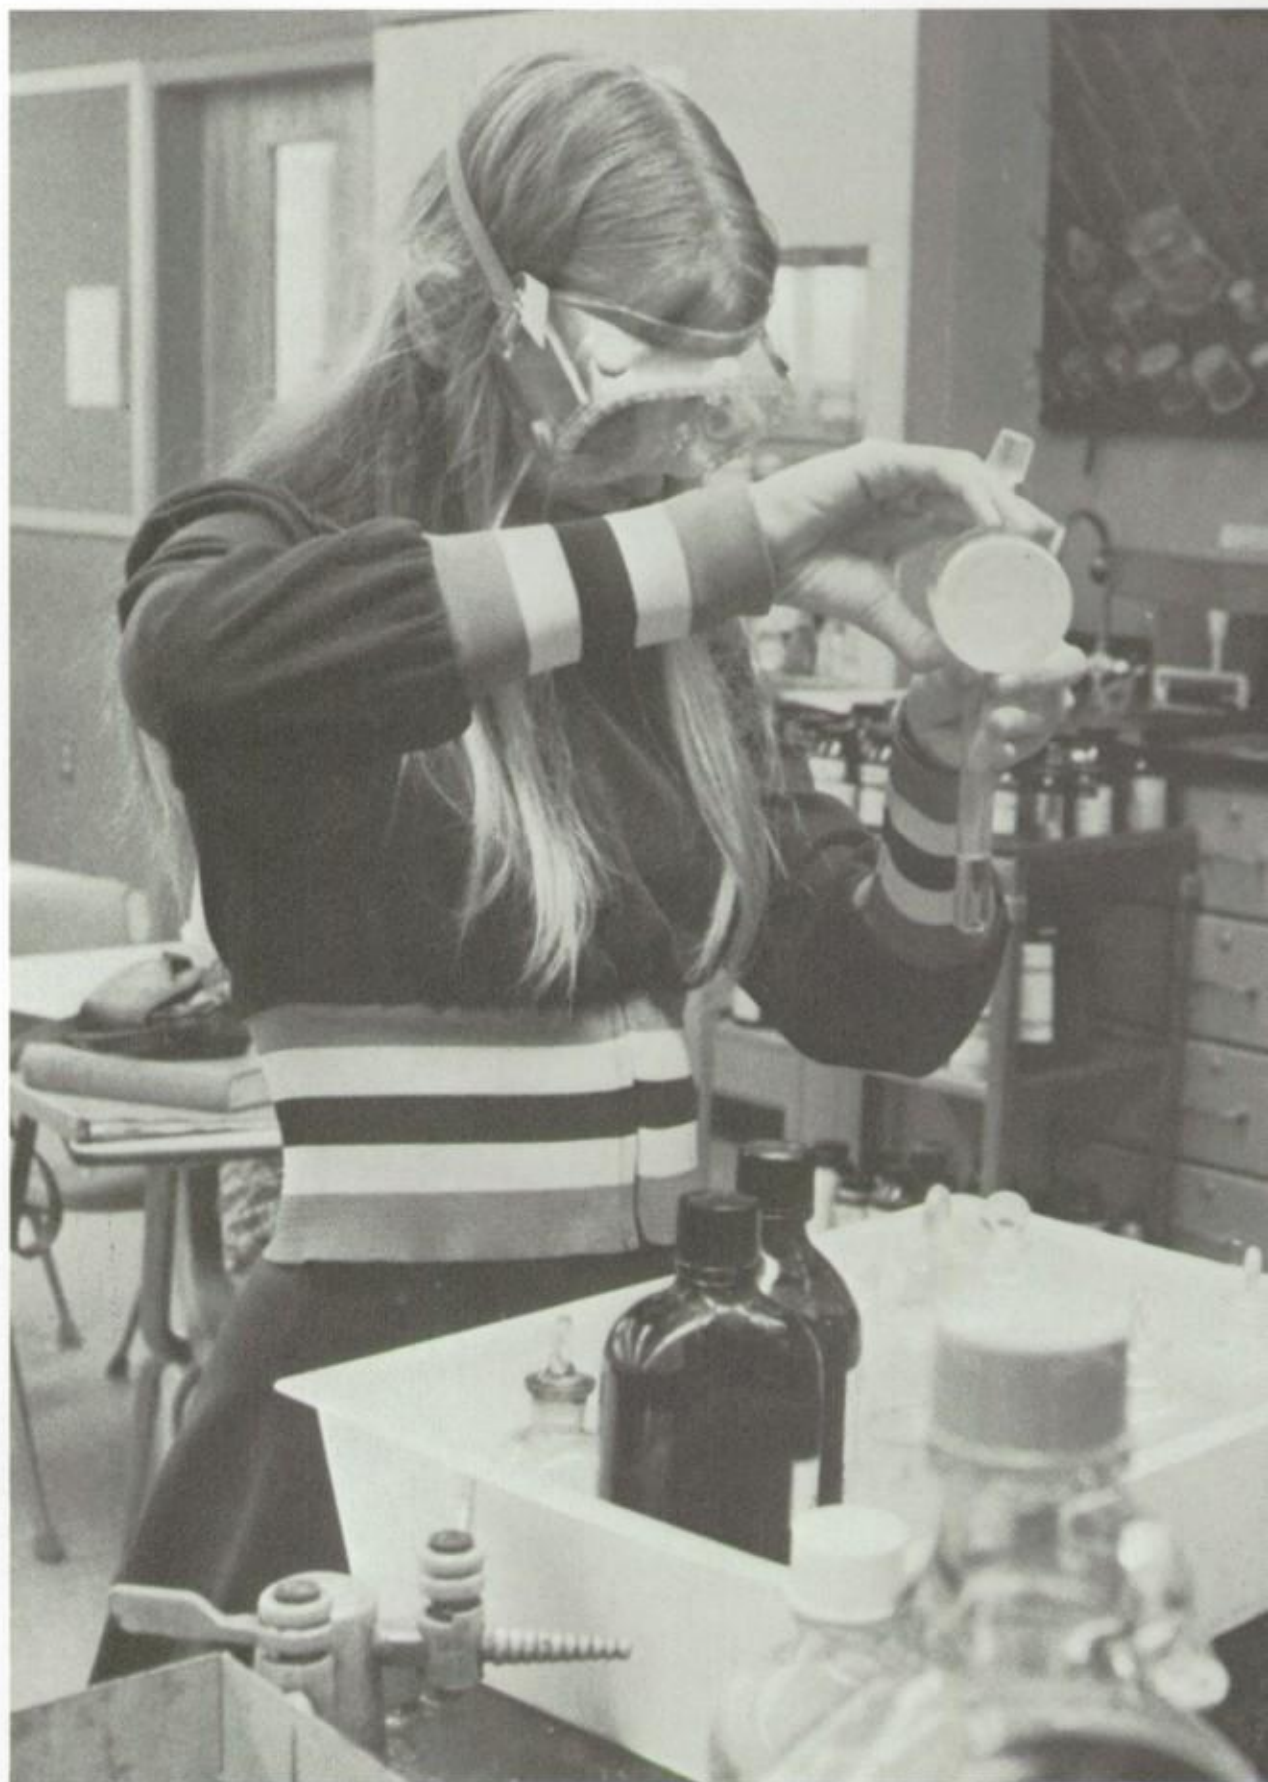

Office assistants worked hard to help the secretaries by sorting mail, filing, and making telephone calls.

Lab workers washed glassware, stocked lab shelves, and mixed essential solutions for chemistry class experiments.

2

1. Concentration, steady hands, and goggles are necessary as Mary Leitzill measures out an acid solution. 2. Tardy slips are easily jumbled, so Paul Harris helps to get them in order.

French NHS boasts 70

Seventy students received the distinction of making French NHS, having maintained an A average in the class and at least an 85 in their other classes for seven terms. The group elected new officers June 5th, with Mr. Gerald Beauchesne acting as advisor.

Advisor to the 9 members of Spanish NHS was Mrs. Rosemarie Demastrie. Initiation on May 21st was held in Spanish. Mrs. Wilma Wierenga inducted 7 students on May 8th for German National Honor Society.

3

1. Carefully considering the choices, members of the French National Honor Society decide their president by secret ballot. 2. During an afterschool meeting, Lisa Pernice asks Mr. Beauchesne about the cost of membership certificates. 3. By laying the black and gold stole over Donna Scott's shoulder, Mrs. Wierenga officially inducts her into the German National Honor Society as her fellow inductees look on.

AVA active in bicentennial

With a large increase in staff,
the Audio-Visual Aides Club eagerly engaged
in bicentennial activities.
In addition to participating in Arbor Day proceedings,
the group videotaped
the Bicentennial Pageant and the Incorporation Day Meeting.

Besides these special events,
AVA assumed its regular duties
such as duplicating cassettes,
delivering equipment
to faculty members
and setting up the auditorium for school events.

Mr. Robert Goff was advisor to the 31-member organization.

2

1. To improve efficiency, Doug Walker rearranges the files. 2. Pausing in the middle of an erasure, Mrs. Lillian Duquette figures out the monthly order.

Club receives citation

Conservation Club members Paul Byrne, Steven Link, and Lyle Tise received the President's Award of Excellence for outstanding achievement in environmental services.

Gary Bonifilia, Bob Casseles, and Deborah and Max Szostkiewicz were awarded the President of the United States Certificate of Merit for service to the community and nation. Supt. of Schools Grammaticas presented the awards in the school library.

The club's crowded year included building a Bi-Ci Parade float and renovating the greenhouse.

1. As the rest of the club looks on, President Paul Byrne receives the President's Award of Excellence from Mr. Chris Grammaticas. 2. At their booth in the school cafeteria, Advisor Suzanne Lemieux talks over the leaf recycling project with club members. 3. To see if interested but maybe not very gentle customers have caused any damage, Steven Link inspects the plants the club is selling at the school tag sale.

Involvement marks clubs

By being actively involved in field trips and civic affairs, members of the Language Clubs learned about the culture and customs of foreign nations.

Prompted by a large increase in membership, the French Club took a field trip to Quebec City.

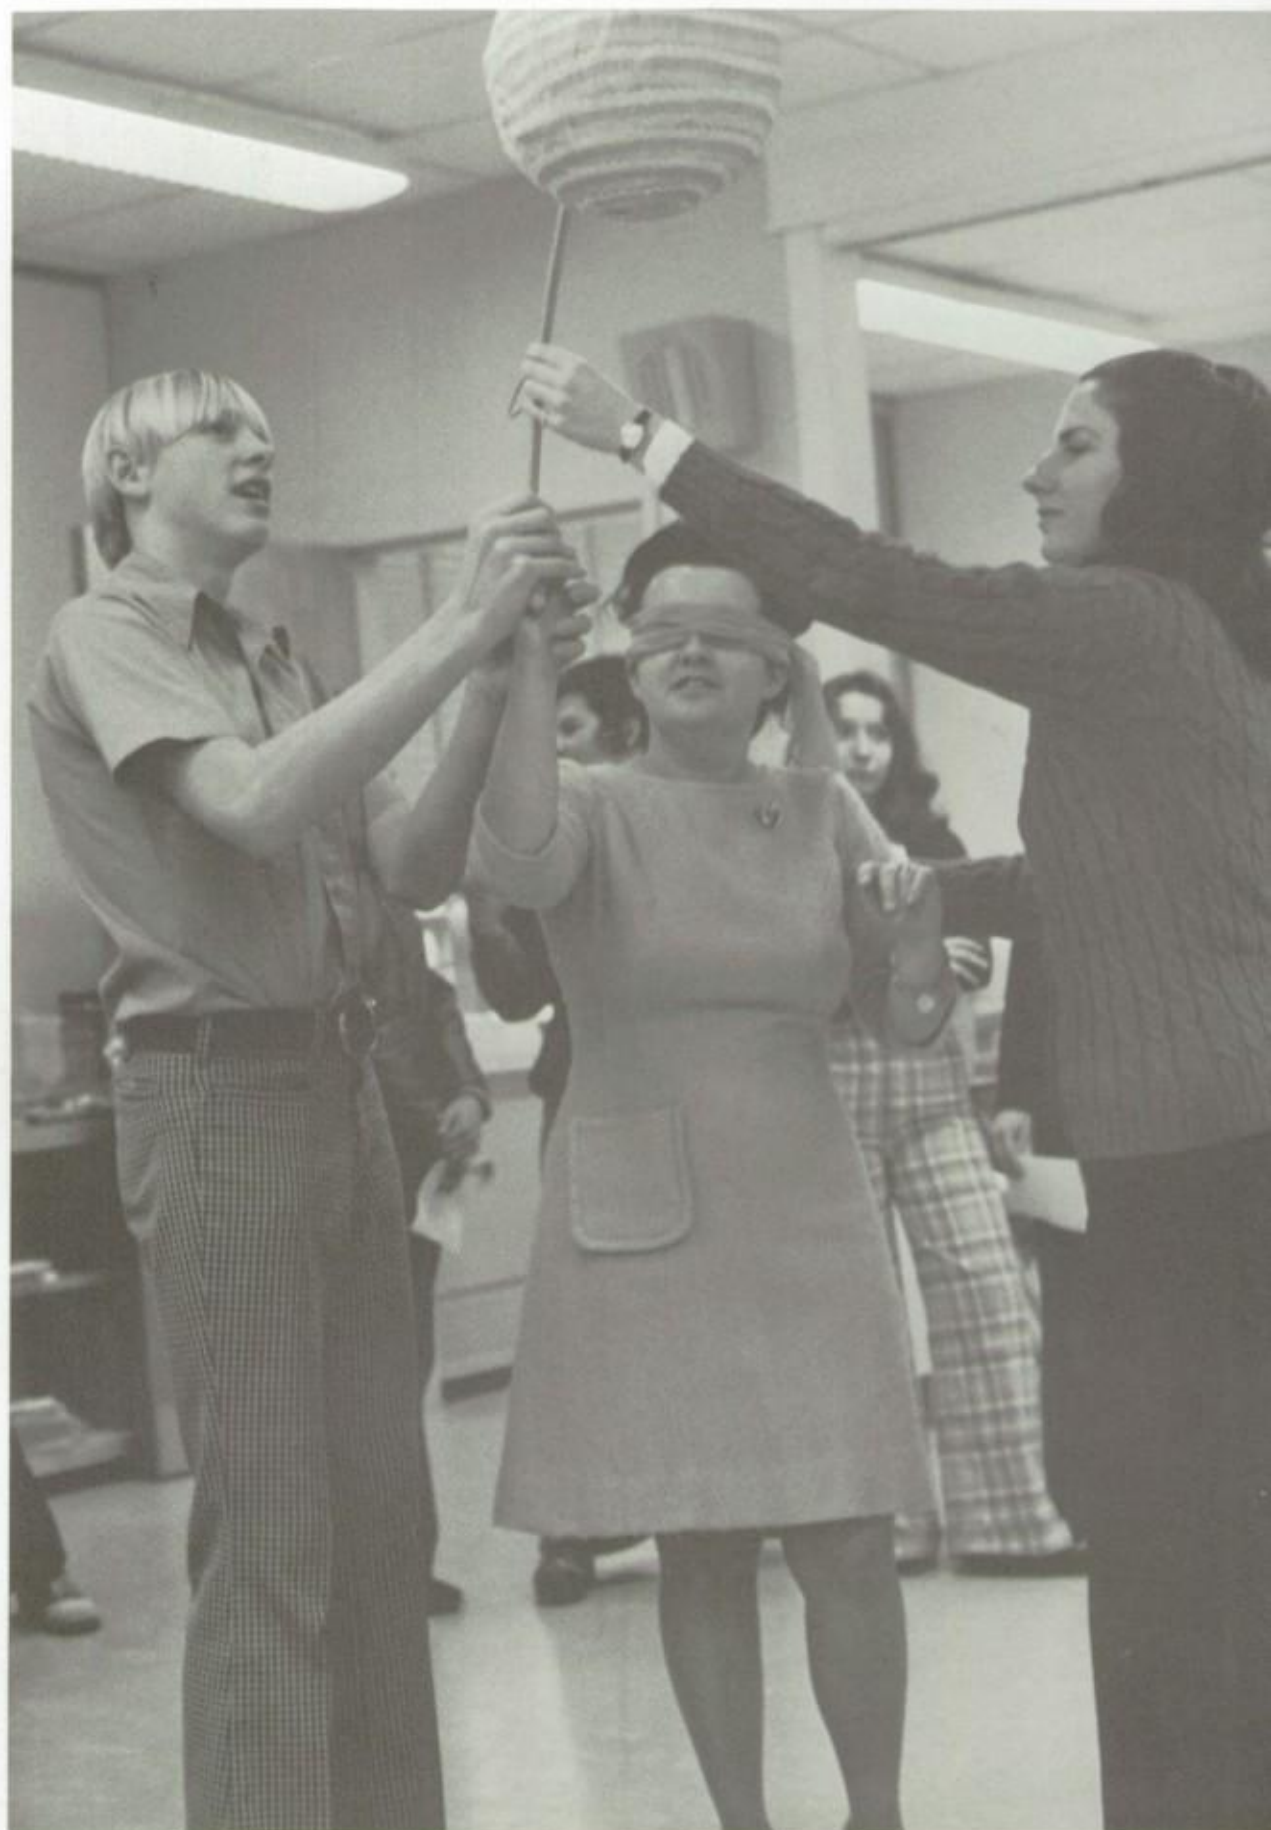

Writing a constitution and collecting dues made for more organized meetings. Mrs. Carmen Richards was advisor.

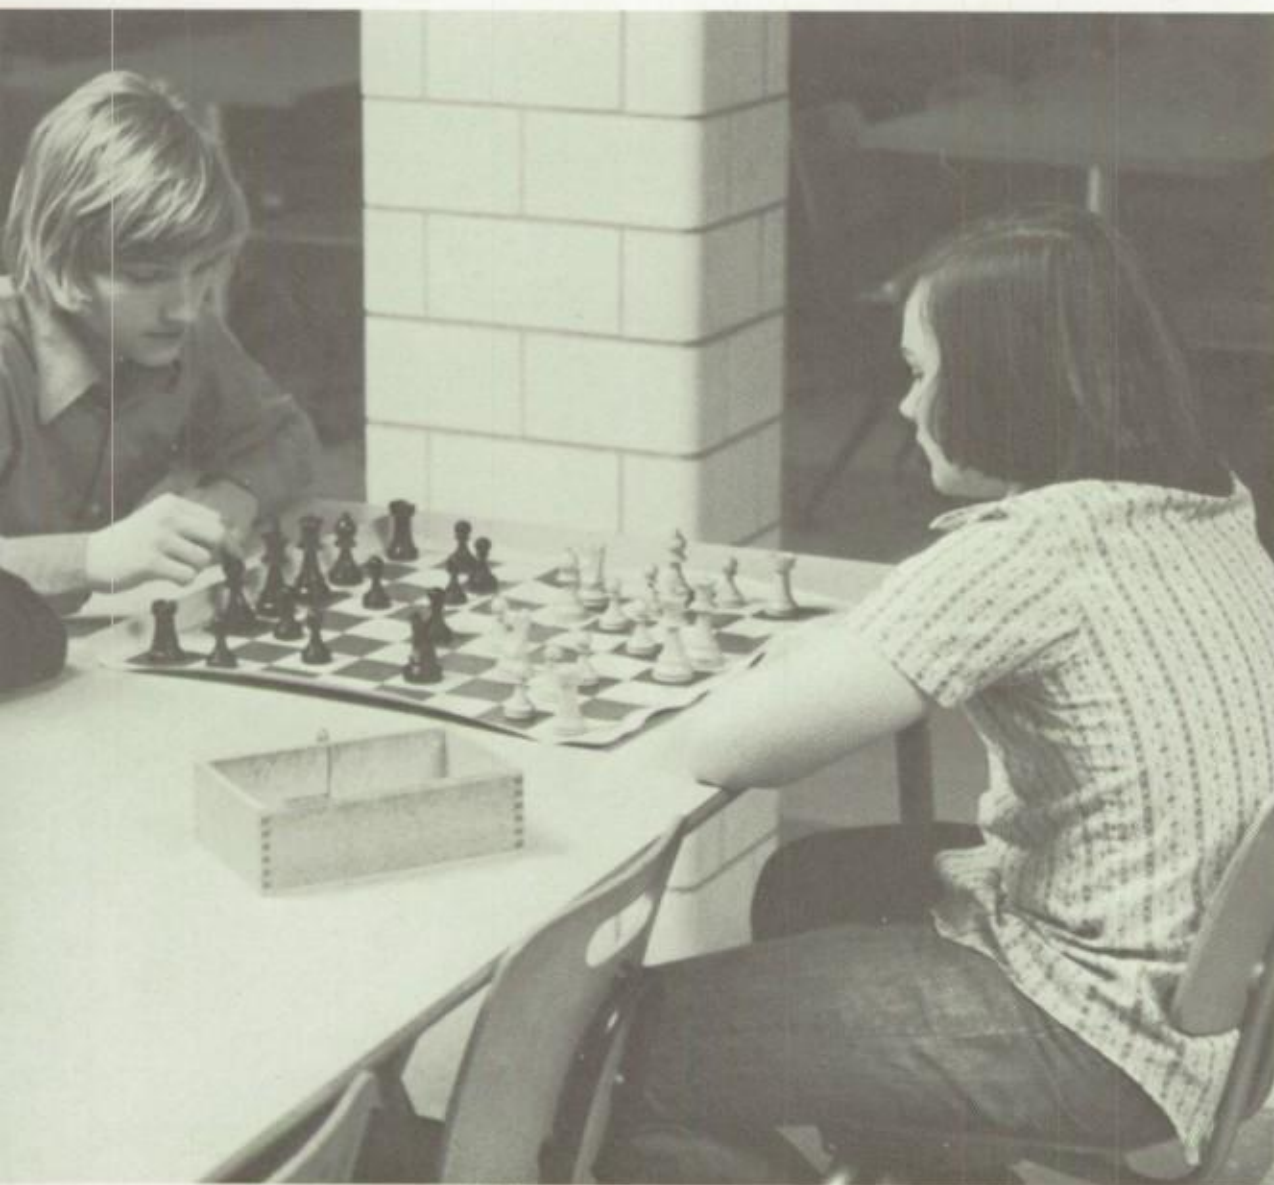

The Spanish Club attended a play given by a Spanish acting troupe, as well as co-sponsoring a Christmas party with the French Club. Miss Joyce Harper was advisor.

1. Steve Link and Miss Roberta Page guide Mrs. Carmen Richards' aim to the pinata. 2. During a meeting of the French Club, Dawn Ouimette attentively listens to a proposal concerning a fund-raising project.

Mathletes, Chess improve

Composed of seniors and juniors, the Mathletes entered its tenth year of competition. Included in the 30-school region, the Mathletes had five meets. Each competitor had to solve five problems varying in difficulty within a time limit. Mr. Willis Phair was advisor.

Providing an opportunity for students to enjoy the game, the Chess Club allowed members to become more proficient at it. The 16-member organization planned meets with other schools in order to participate in the league next year. Mr. Gregory Little was advisor.

1. Jack Pinkerman ponders his next move against Brian Slowick in a practice session. 2. Mathlete Tracy Michel calculates the angles of a trapezoid. 3. David Tharaldson deliberates a move after David Witherell puts him in check.

DECA mans Big E booth

Acquiring knowledge in marketing and distribution, DECA members sponsored several projects. At the Eastern States Exposition, a booth provided townspeople with a chance to support the DECA program.

On Blue and White Day, DECA sold miniature footballs to boost school spirit. A Christmas gift boutique and Valentine's Day candy sale increased members' knowledge of business administration.

Representatives of the organization were sent to the DECA State Leadership Conference in Hyannis, Mass.

3

1. Making last minute alterations on the Exposition booth, Barbara Haight prepares to sell plants and hand-made goods. 2. Diane Demers shows Elaine Howle some of the merchandise offered at the Christmas boutique. 3. During a lunch period, Nancy Parent waits for business to pick up.

FMC boasts active year

Numerous field trips, speakers, and fund-raising projects contributed to an active and prosperous year for the Future Medical Careers Club with Mrs. Elizabeth LaVoice, advisor. Guests spoke on opportunities and requirements necessary in a medical career.

Field trips were taken to Belchertown State Hospital and Shriner's Hospital for Crippled Children.

During the Christmas season, the club hosted a party at the West Springfield Nursing Home. Members made gifts and entertained the patients.

3

1. Mrs. Shirley Shuster, a third-year nursing student, listens to questions posed by members of the club. 2. Mrs. Elizabeth LaVoice and Beth Swords view slides on one phase of a nursing career. 3. Raising funds for the club projects, Kathy DellaGiustina and Linda Christodlous sell baked goods to Delna Norris.

Choir gives many concerts

Under the direction of Mr. John Shuster, the Concert Choir performed choral music of all styles and periods during several concerts.

Along with the Madrigal Modern and Chamber Singers, the Choir sponsored Christmas and spring concerts as well as Terrier Talents.

Besides these annual events, the Choir sang with the Springfield Youth Symphony and the Ecumenical Choir and Spring Orchestra. Giving benefits for the AARP, Rotary Club and Grove Village made for an active year.

Band visits Washington D.C.

For its annual spring trip, the band spent four days in Washington D.C. where members played on the Capitol steps, visited Arlington Cemetery, and listened to the Marine Band.

Members funded the trip through Exposition parking and candy sales.

On February 1-2, the band presented its bicentennial version of the Pops Concert. "Instant Concert" and "Pony Trot" drew the most applause.

Director Donald Abbe led the band. Pat Liebro was Student Director. Nancy Couture was Drum majorette.

Seniors face new decisions

Numerous decisions and activities awaited the new senior class. Frosh Day, Held October 5, was a huge success for seniors. Seniors continued to work hard putting together the Agawam skit. Things became less tense around March as college acceptances and job placements came in. A senior-faculty basketball game helped raise funds for a new scoreboard. The banquet was on May 28 with Forrest entertaining. Graduation exercises took place on June 1.

Turning clay into an artwork takes the kind of skill a senior like Sandy Berchulski possesses.

Junior class sponsors many events

Juniors jumped into a flurry of activities as they began the year as upperclassmen. Carrying on a tradition, the Pumpkin Dance was held on October 26th followed by a sale the next day on the green to accent the bicentennial year. A "Greaser Dance" was held on March 1st sponsored by the Juniors. Culminating a year of activities, the Junior class hosted the Jr-Sr Prom "Just You 'N Me" held on May 24th at Chez Josef in Agawam.

Juniors receive their class rings in the fall.

Sophomores increase involvement

Mr. Robert Zemba assumed duties as new Sophomore class advisor. In this capacity, he aided the class in preparing for the year's highlight, the Mock Prom. Class rings, ordered in May, gave the Sophomores a chance to glimpse the future as upperclassmen.

The Mock Prom, held March 16, was the most important activity of the year. Doing away with tradition, both the upper and lower lobbies were used. "Siras Hale" entertained and "We've Only Just Begun" was chosen for the theme.

Sophomores rise to the occasion during the Agawam Pep Rally.

Freshmen seek identity in new school

Trying to become a part of the high school, freshmen strived to adapt themselves to their new environment. Numerous freshmen showed spirit by participating in Frosh Day activities. Frosh stamps, displayed on foreheads, enabled freshmen to take part in the day's events. Frosh advisor, Mr. Peter Kwiat, aided the class throughout the year with their various activities. Siras Hale, a local band, entertained at the Freshmen Dance. It was held on December 14. The success was evident judging by the crowd.

The library offers a quiet place to study.

A yearbook is a memory book, and memories are a result of time. "Time", the theme of the 1974 TERRIER is a very appropriate one because of the tremendous amount of time and effort involved in producing a quality yearbook. We would like to express our gratitude to all of the people who made our job a little bit easier and more gratifying.

Special thanks should be extended to Walt Steinmetz, our professional photographer, and Loring Studios, as well as to certain members of the faculty and office workers for providing necessary lists and for patiently filling out troublesome information sheets. Sincere thanks to Mr. Donald Lendry of the American Yearbook Company, Karen Forni and Jim Okolita — Associate Editors, a very dedicated staff, and especially to Mr. Peter T. Connors for his tremendous help and guidance throughout this long year.

To all who have helped in any way, thank you for enabling us to capture a small amount of time in the 1974 TERRIER.

Cherish your memories

Live your moments,

And dream your tomorrows.
